

Steady, calm, and forward-thinking ER Doctor wanted.

Work for an ER Doctor has shifted. We all know that the impacts of Covid have led to high caseloads, longer hours, and greater demands from pet owners who don't understand the changes taking place in the veterinary world.

We won't sugar coat it. It's a challenging time to practice quality emergency medicine. But, as with all challenges, there is opportunity to make change, grow, and thrive.

This is the kind of ER doctor we're looking for. Someone who can roll up their sleeves and not only get the job done, but who is comfortable collaborating with peers, staff, and our owners to help launch new initiatives and programs to enhance their own role, client service, and the quality of medicine.

Work with the owners.

Because ACCESS Specialty Animal Hospital (Palm Beach County) is owned by hands-on veterinarians who are open to ideas and willing to make changes, you won't feel left out or ignored. As a vital link in the care chain, your input counts.

The benefits of a shiny new hospital.

In April, we opened our purpose-built 20,000 sq. ft. hospital in Palm Beach County, Florida which must be seen to be believed. What's better than having corridors wide enough for two gurneys to pass each other with space in between? We also have state-of-the-art equipment and the facilities one would expect from a multi-million dollar specialty animal hospital,* and are open to expanding in different directions. As such, we believe that few people are more qualified to make change than our doctors, and we always encourage those who are willing to challenge the status quo and lead the charge.

 Among other things, our hospital includes an in-house laboratory, multi-parameter monitoring devices, two digital radiology suites, a full complement of ultrasound equipment, an endoscopy suite, fluoroscopy with a neurovascular package, and top of the line CT and MRI machines. One of our five large operating rooms is equipped for minimally invasive surgery, and another for fluoroscopy and interventional radiology. Our emergency room and ICU are in separate areas with the ER having its own operating room for minor procedures. We also have separate canine and feline intermediate care wards as well as an I131 ward.*
